FERRYBOAT TRIED TO AID, But a Tow Was in the Way and She Was in Danger of Going Ashore. Charles H. Beecher, superintendent of the New York and College Point Ferry Company, says that instead of the ferryboat Bronz of his company ignoring the General Slocum in distress, Capt. Henry Montford of the Bronx made efforts to go to her assistance, but could not do it.

Supt. Beecher said yesterday: "The Bronz had passed the General Slocum before the fire was seen and right behind the ferryboat were two tows. When Capt. Mont-ford saw the General Slocum in distress he had the pin of the Bronx, which is a double ender, pulled to change her direction, and went to the other end of the boat to steer her back toward the General Slocum. But directly in the way, right across his course, were these two tows. He could not get by them and the way the tide was running he had to continue his former course or go ashore himself. He started to assist the Slocum, but was unable to do so.

"Two of our men at the 134th street dock with Policeman Collins, who was detailed there, got a big boat from a lumber steamer and saved twenty-two live persons and sixteen bodies." had the pin of the Bronx, which is a double CROWDS BY THE WATER SIDE Even the Boats Moving To and From the Seene of the Wreek a Source of Wonder.

Police Commissioner McAdoo established bureau of information at the Health Department pier, at the foot of 132d street. Sergeant Lonergan, in charge, had a list of the injured who were in the hospitals. If the name of the person sought was not in this list, inquirers were directed to the Bellevue morgue. At the Alexander avenue police station the same thing was done. Locust avenue, which runs parallel with the river, was patrolled from 132d to 149th street, and nobody was allowed to pass near the water.

There was nothing of the wreck to to and from the scene of the wieck to and from the scene of the disaster, but the magnitude of the horror drey, a crowd merely to look at the water which covered so many dead. Now and again there passed a man or woman whose bandaged head on hands indicated a participent the state of the scene of the disaster, but the scene of the on the terrible tragedy and whose heavy eyes showed a desperate hope that something would be learned of missing ones here in sight of the course the faming Slocum had taken.

TOOK OUT MANY CORPSES.

Work of a Police Lineman and a Con With a Grappling Hook Made of Gas Pipe. Doorman George W. Reed, who is detailed at Police Headquarters as a lineman, told there yesterday how he and Rounds-man Klute brought many bodies out of the water at North Brother Island. Reed way sent up to the scene of the disaster on Wednesday morning to assist in recovering

Wednesday morning to assist in recovering the bodies. He improvised a grappling hook out of a piece of gas pipe and some stiff wire. By 4 o'clock he and the roundsman had recovered 100 bodies.

"Once," said Reed, "I brought up a woman and a fourteen-year-old girl tied together with ropes. Another time I brought up a seventeen-year-old boy clasping a four-year-old boy in his arms. One girl, about 15 years old, seemed to have died while preving. Her hands were clasped together."

Money and Valuables From the Dead. At the Coroner's office in The Bronx are several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry and a large sum of money which was taken from the bodies that were sayed from the wreck. It is said that the total value is at least $100.000. The largest amount of money found on one body was $175.

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL AND HUDSON

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

RIVER RAILEAO AD COMPANY.

The Directors have learned with profound acrrow of the death of Edwin D. Worcester, the Secretary of the company.

Mr. Worcester had completed fifty years of official service. One of the first of the consolidations of connecting railroads was in the union, in 1883, of the ten separate companies which formed the line between Albany and Buffalo into one company called the New York Central. To bring together the various departments and establish uniformity of operation and accounts was a difficult task. Mr. Worcester was recognized at that early period as an expert accountant, and he was selected to bring the crude and diverse methods of the old companies into working order. He was so successful that he was elected Treasurer. In 1867 Commodore Vanderbilt came into control of the central, having previously acquired the Hudson River Railroad. Upon the consolidation of these companies Mr. Worcester was made Secretary, and continued in that office until his death. After the extension of the Vanderbilt system to Chicago, he was made Vice-Prealdent, Secretary and Treasurer of the Lake Shore Railroad Company, and VicePresident and Secretary of the Michigan Central.
Mr. Worcester's activities were in a wider field inhan his official duties. He always had the confidence of the powers in control of the properties, and they relied upon his advice and assistance in the many and almost revolutionary processes by which, from time to time, the system was developed and expanded. He was a profound student in his profession and mastered every branch of the service. He demonstrated, as a witness, before investigating committees of legislative bodies, a knowledge of detail and a comprehension of the necessities, as well as the limitation and principles underlying railway management, which made him an authority of national importance on these questions. The highest tribute to his ability, fidelity, and integrity is that for half a century successive administrations RIVER RAILROAD COMPANY. The Directors have learned with profound sorrow
